

And Now,

Equal Time for our Opponents

By Your JPFO Liberty Crew

People often use the term “police state” without really knowing what it means. It really isn’t all that bad.

A police state is a society where the government undertakes the roles of parent, disciplinarian, organizer, implementer and punisher, all wrapped into one tax-supported bundle. The “police” term refers simply to the idea that the state will keep everything in society orderly and tidy and aligned to the same central goals.

Of course, you can’t really tolerate much individual deviation and arbitrary action, what some people call “freedom,” if you’re going to have a nicely functioning police state. To make it work, you need experts and government employees, who have been certified, to make most plans and guide most decisions. Honestly, you really wouldn’t want mere citizens running their own lives – too much chaos, not enough central planning.

To get yourself and your family ready for citizenship in a police state, post the following checklist on your refrigerator door. These 15 steps are not difficult, and the sooner you are prepared, the sooner the police state can step in to protect and save us all.

Future World Citizen Checklist

- Respect government as the highest value, above the Almighty or any other value system.
- Memorize the phrase: “Search me, watch me, I have nothing to hide.”
- View increased taxes as the necessary path to social justice and prosperity.
- Never question a government press release or public statement.
- Leave the job of educating your children to the experts; don’t interfere with school operations and policies.
- Don’t burden your children with your ideas about the American rights and institutions that made America strong and free. They’ll get all they need from mainstream media and government teachers.
- Embrace multiculturalism because it ensures conflicts among competing interest groups that only government experts and programs can solve.
- Remain ignorant of the Bill of Rights and the Declaration of Independence; they are historical curiosities that modern government has greatly improved upon.
- Entertain yourself instead of educate yourself.
- Ignore and put out of your mind any concerns about genocide or oppression; these ideas will only interfere with your sleep.
- Associate with people whose primary life goal is to “go along and get along.”
- Cooperate with programs to track and monitor citizens’ purchases, movements, activities and communications.
- Never question authority, and shun people who do.
- Report to authorities any person who seems to deviate from “normal.”
- Joyfully register all firearms with government agencies, since government agencies will never misuse that information or confiscate firearms in the future.

Just in case you are not eager to become a loyal world citizen in a well-oiled police state, we have some simple steps for you. Just leave all of the 15 boxes unchecked. Do the opposite of each of the 15 suggestions.

Is This A Joke?

Are we kidding? Have we gone nuts? Not at all.

For many years we have been pretty one-sided about explaining and proclaiming our American rights and freedoms. We've always taken the side of individual liberty, the right to keep and bear arms, and the defense of innocents against oppressors.

We realized that we had been unfair to the other side. After all, there surely must be many Americans who are offended by all this rights and freedom talk. And surely there are really good reasons to surrender individual citizens' rights in favor of government planning and control.

So, we decided to give a little "equal time" to the other side. Follow the 15 steps in the Checklist above, and you'll be doing exactly what the other side wants you to do. That's fair, isn't it?
